DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's Request for Continued Examination and amendment filed July 3, 2003 in which Claim 1 has been amended, have been place of record in the file as Papers No. 19 and 20, respectively.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-4 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Curzio (U.S. Patent No. 5,611,013). With regard to Claim 1, Curzio discloses a transducer comprising a housing (1) mountable on a substrate (3), the housing (1) configured to receive a jumper cable (5, 7, 9), an input/output (I/O) lead (17, 25, 26, 27, 29) supported by the housing (1) and configured to contact an I/O lead (31) of an integrated circuit (33) mounted on the substrate (3) and electronic circuitry (inside 1) supported by the housing (1) to transition between an electronic data transfer protocol of the jumper cable (5, 7, 9) and an electronic data protocol of the integrated circuit (33).

See Figs. 1-4.

With regard to Claim 2, Curzio discloses the transducer I/O lead (17, 25, 26, 27, 29) being configured to electrically connect to the integrated circuit (33) I/O lead (31) independently of any electrically conductive path of the substrate (3). See Figs. 1-4.

With regard to Claim 3, Curzio discloses the transducer I/O lead (17, 25, 26, 27, 29) being configured to contact the integrated circuit (33) I/O lead (31) at a transducer surface substantially parallel to a mounting surface (upper surface of 3) of the substrate (3). See Figs. 1-4.

With regard to Claim 4, Curzio discloses the transducer I/O lead (17, 25, 26, 27, 29) being configured to contact a pin I/O lead (31) of the integrated circuit (33). It is the Examiner's opinion that lead (31) can be considered a pin lead since Applicant's lead has a curved shape but it still being considered a pin lead. ~~See Figs. 1-4.~~

With regard to Claim 6, Curzio discloses the transducer I/O lead (17, 25, 26, 27, 29) being configured to contact the integrated circuit (33) I/O lead (31) at a transducer surface adjacent to a mounting surface (upper surface of 3) of the substrate (3). See Figs. 1-4.

With regard to Claim 7, Curzio discloses a power input lead (31) connectable to a power line (13) of the substrate (3). See Figs. 1-4.

With regard to Claim 8, Curzio discloses a transductional device (15). See Figs. 1-4 and Column 5, Lines 60-66.

With regard to Claim 9, Curzio discloses the transductional device (15) being an opto-electronic device (15). See Figs. 1-4 and Column 5, Lines 60-66.

With regard to Claim 10, Curzio discloses the transductional device (15) being an electronic device (15). Since the opto-electronic component (15) has some electronic circuits as mentioned in Column 5, Line 66, it is the Examiner's opinion that opto-electronic component (15) can be considered an electronic device. See Figs. 1-4 and Column 5, Lines 60-66.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 5 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Curzio (U.S. Patent No. 5,611,013) in view of Lemke et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,024,584). Curzio discloses the claimed invention except for the transducer I/O lead being configured to contact a solder ball lead of the integrated circuit.

Lemke et al. discloses the use of solder balls leads (100) to connect an electrical connector (10) and a circuit board (204). See Figs. 5-6.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the transducer of Curzio by changing the lead from the integrated circuit to a solder ball lead as taught in Lemke et al. in order to provide a more reliable electrical path between the transducer and the integrated circuit.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
